Union Budget 2023: Union Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman presented the last full-fledged Union Budget 2023 of the Modi government before the 2024 Lok Sabha elections. The Budget Session of Parliament began on Tuesday and the first part will conclude on 13 February. The Parliament will re-convene on 12 March for the second part of the Budget Session that will conclude on 6 April.

OPPI DG, Mr Vivek Sehgal on Health and pharma sector: "OPPI would like to congratulate the government on the 2023-24 Union Budget tabled by the Finance Minister. The budget has brought much optimism to the healthcare and pharma sector by putting the focus on research and innovation. With the announcement of a new program for research in the pharma industry being formulated, there is immense potential for the sector to remain competitive in providing quality healthcare to its people. Moreover, the impetus for public-private collaborations showcases the government's emphasis on providing faster solutions to India's health challenges. As OPPI, we are looking forward to putting in all our resources and aligning with the government to achieve the objective of healthcare for all."
